Dear All,

I am writing to bring you up to date with the recent appointments to the various vacant GP educator sessions within the area.

I am delighted to be able to report that the standard of application for our posts was very, very high. The interviewing team, led by Paul Main, had a difficult job selecting the successful candidates - which bodes well for us.

Within your area the following doctors were appointed as GP Educator:

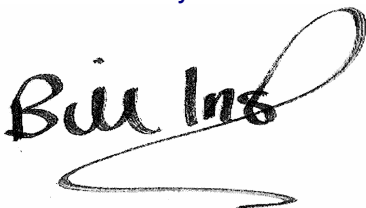

Holly Hardy for two sessions per week
Laura Killingback for two sessions per week
Freya Scott for two sessions per week

They join the existing team of Graham Rawlinson, John Seddon, Pippa Stables, Jo Hennessy and Terry Kemple, led by the patch associate director for Bristol, Dr Michael Harris.

I am sure that you will join with me in congratulating those who have joined each local GP educational team, and will give them your full support in the future. No doubt they will be keen to introduce themselves to you over the next few weeks.

This is an exciting time for the school. At long last we are at (or nearly at) full strength and can now really concentrate on developing our GPST training programmes to reflect the requirements of MMC, the new curriculum and nMRCGP. Watch this space!

Yours sincerely

Dr Bill Irish BSc MMed FRCGP
Head, School of General Practice
